Since our inception in year 1999, thousands of students and parents have sought our advice in making educational decisions. Today we offer personal guidance at the critical stages of education, from class 10 to undergraduate and postgraduate and, thereafter, on career choices.

Career Counselling involves the laying out of career paths most likely to result in professional and personal success. Since a person is gifted with many traits, it would be wrong to presume that there is only a single career suitable for him. Further, a single career may necessitate a set of many traits necessary for success. Keeping this in mind, we work to help understand one's strengths and weaknesses and map the most appropriate career paths. For example, someone having an inborn aptitude for logical reasoning, good communication and good drafting and presentation skills (as revealed by tests) could be equally suitable for either a legal or a diplomatic career. In such cases, one's personality traits and personal likings could play a significant role in career choice and later success.

It must be remembered that there is nothing bad or good about a particular aptitude profile, rather, it's just a unique internal map which can guide us. Such skills, if nurtured further with appropriate training and education, can become the foundation of a successful career and life.

Our Specialization

1. Educational Counselling

We counsel students regarding educational issues such as class scheduling, school adjustment, truancy and study habits. We support students in their academic success by helping them develop effective study methodologies. Other issues that may be barriers to their success may include learning disabilities, test anxiety, procrastination, improper time management, inability to set goal and lack of self-motivation. Helping them realize how different factors may be contributing to their academic performance such as eating habits, behavior, family and relationship issues and inner conflicts. We help them diagnose the problem and formulate strategies to fix the same. We also help students make education-related decisions.

2. STUDENT SPECIFIC SERVICES

- Career Counselling.
- Stream Selection.
- Personality Assessment.
- Career Interest assessment.

3. COLLEGE SPECIFIC SERVICES

- Life Skills Assessment and Counselling.
- Soft Skills Development.
- Time and Stress Management.
- Making an Individual Job Ready (based on the requirements of the industry).
- Interview and Group discussion Preparation.
- College Selection for post graduate courses.
- Study Abroad counselling and documentation.
- Resume writing.
- & many more..

TERMS AND CONDITIONS:

Scope of Work: The Presenter agrees to conduct career orientation lectures on RESUME WRITING, VEDIC MATHS, GD, PERSONALITY DEVELOPMENT ETC at the Institution on mutually agreed-upon dates.

Duration: The lectures will be conducted during the academic year 2018-2019 and may be extended by mutual agreement.

Since our inception in year 1999, thousands of students and parents have sought our advice in making educational decisions. Today we offer personal guidance at the critical stages of education, from class 10 to undergraduate and postgraduate and, thereafter, on career choices.

Career Counselling involves the laying out of career paths most likely to result in professional and personal success. Since a person is gifted with many traits, it would be wrong to presume that there is only a single career suitable for him. Further, a single career may necessitate a set of many traits necessary for success. Keeping this in mind, we work to help understand one's strengths and weaknesses and map the most appropriate career paths. For example, someone having an inborn aptitude for logical reasoning, good communication and good drafting and presentation skills (as revealed by tests) could be equally suitable for either a legal or a diplomatic career. In such cases, one's personality traits and personal likings could play a significant role in career choice and later success.

It must be remembered that there is nothing bad or good about a particular aptitude profile, rather, it's just a unique internal map which can guide us. Such skills, if nurtured further with appropriate training and education, can become the foundation of a successful career and life.

1. Educational Counselling

We counsel students regarding educational issues such as class scheduling, school adjustment, truancy and study habits. We support students in their academic success by helping them develop effective study methodologies. Other issues that may be barriers to their success may include learning disabilities, test anxiety, procrastination, improper time management, inability to set goal and lack of self-motivation. Helping them realize how different factors may be contributing to their academic performance such as eating habits, behavior, family and relationship issues and inner conflicts. We help them diagnose the problem and formulate strategies to fix the same. We also help students make education-related decisions.

2. STUDENT SPECIFIC SERVICES

Since our inception in year 1999, thousands of students and parents have sought our advice in making educational decisions. Today we offer personal guidance at the critical stages of education, from class 10 to undergraduate and postgraduate and, thereafter, on career choices.

Career Counselling involves the laying out of career paths most likely to result in professional and personal success. Since a person is gifted with many traits, it would be wrong to presume that there is only a single career suitable for him. Further, a single career may necessitate a set of many traits necessary for success. Keeping this in mind, we work to help understand one's strengths and weaknesses and map the most appropriate career paths. For example, someone having an inborn aptitude for logical reasoning, good communication and good drafting and presentation skills (as revealed by tests) could be equally suitable for either a legal or a diplomatic career. In such cases, one's personality traits and personal likings could play a significant role in career choice and later success.

It must be remembered that there is nothing bad or good about a particular aptitude profile, rather, it's just a unique internal map which can guide us. Such skills, if nurtured further with appropriate training and education, can become the foundation of a successful career and life.

1. Educational Counselling

We counsel students regarding educational issues such as class scheduling, school adjustment, truancy and study habits. We support students in their academic success by helping them develop effective study methodologies. Other issues that may be barriers to their success may include learning disabilities, test anxiety, procrastination, improper time management, inability to set goal and lack of self-motivation. Helping them realize how different factors may be contributing to their academic performance such as eating habits, behavior, family and relationship issues and inner conflicts. We help them diagnose the problem and formulate strategies to fix the same. We also help students make education-related decisions.
